ANNOUNCEMENTS

Evangelist Coming Here. Rev. D. W. West, the noted evangelist, will conduct a series of meet-ings at Grace Memorial Baptist church from April 7th to 18th. Evangelistic song service at 7.30. Preaching every night at 8. The public is cordially invited to all of the services to hear

Mrs. Zoe Meade to Speak.

At the meeting of the Parish Hous iation of Park Congregational h, Mrs. F. S. Bunnell president, held Friday afternoon at the Os-Memorial, Mrs. Zoe Meade will church, Mrs. speak of her work in county. Mrs. Robert Mills will sing.

Bulldogging Cowbow's Daring Sport The greatest, most daring and thrilling sport of ranch life is bulldog-ging a steer. It is an exploit which only a few rangers will attempt. Many have lost their lives at it

It is a most unusual stunt and requires an abundance of nerve. It means riding into the face of very death with the chances 100 to 1 against coming out alive.

Few city people know what bull-logging is. At a recent round-up, on he Two-Bar Triangle ranch, near Prescott Arizona, an Eastern college professor witnessed the antics of the owboys and gasped in astonishment when he saw the buildogging feature. Here is what he saw:

A cowboy, yelling at the top of his voice, came dashing across the plains on an unsaddled poney. 1,000 cattle was stampeding into

The cowboy, still on his horse, rode through the herd to the front of the maddened animals, jumped on to the back of the steer that was leading, and catching him by the horns fought and struggled until he threw the infuri animal, c rest of the herd, which had caturally followed the leader, spread into a V-shaped formation, scattered in all directions and were corralled in ime to save them from plunging int the blaze. That's bulldogging.

Henry Sienkiewicz, author o "Quo Vadis," gives a vivid descrip-tion of buildegging in his book. He tells how Ursus, the gian Lydian, bull dogged a wild steer, and saved his princess who was bound to the horns of the animal.

Bulldogging, with all the attendan daring and thrills, is shown for the first time on the screen in "Treat Em Rough," a William Fox photoplay coming to the Auditorium theatre today. Tom Mix, the cowboy star, act-ually buildogs a steer and saves his sweetheart from being trampled to death by a stampeding herd. In addition to this wonderful photoplay, a splendid programme of three big all star acts, will be shown. Also Houdine, in the best episode of "The Master Mystery,"

DAVIS THEATRE

The show billed for the Davis the ast half of this week is one that will classe both young and old. The Keith vaudeville is of the highest standard and the feature pictures are among the best that are shown anywhere. Headng the vaudeville is Stoddard and Hynes in the comedy musical playlet. The Absent Minded Professor. This act has its own scenery and has been a big hit in all the Keith theatres. Sammy Renn and the Cunningham Sisters are the second offering, and they have a comedy singing talking. States are the second offering, and they have a comedy singing, talking and dancing skit, A Pumpikn from Harkins Corner. The other act is Allen and Dog Taxie. This is a clever animal offering. The photoplay feature is Ethel Clayton in Woman's Weapons. a five-part Paramount production. The story deals with a man who becomes infatuated with a woman he regards as his soul mate, but his sanity is reas alls soul mate, but his sanity is restored by a patient, resourceful wife. Elliott Dexter plays the part of the husband. A two-reel Mack Sennet comedy called The Village Smithy with Chester Conklin, the famous comedian, completes the show.

BREED THEATRE

Patrons who appreciate something elever in play construction and best production will find their in production will and their desires gratified if they see Bert Lytell in "The Blind Man's Eyes," which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today. The story was adapted by June Mathis from the novel by William McHarg and Edwin Balmer. and is a combination of mystery and romance. A competent cast of play-ers are seen in this production and includes such well known artists as Frank Currier, Nanmi Childers and

Kitty Gordon will also be seen in "Mandarin's Gold," a five act World production. This is a play that is production. This is a play that is surprising, interesting, splendidly act-ed and elaborately staged. Supporting Miss Gordon in this offering is a notable east which includes Irving Cum and Warner Oland e Pathe travel series will complete
